POL HC 1026 Constitutional Government and Democracy in India

Course objective: This course acquaints students with the constitutional design of state structures and institutions, and their actual working overtime. The Indian Constitution accommodates conflicting impulses (of liberty and justice, territorial decentralization and a strong union, for instance) within itself. The course traces the embodiment of some of these conflicts in constitutional provisions, and shows how these have played out in political practice. It further encourages a study of state institutions in their mutual interaction, and in interaction with the larger extra-constitutional environment.

Course Outcomes:

- To acquaint students with constitutional design of state structures and institutions
- To understand the conflicts in constitutional provisions
- To make them comprehend the state institutions in relation to extra constitutional environment.

POL HC 2026 Political Process in India

Course objective: Actual politics in India diverges quite significantly from constitutional legal rules. An understanding of the political process thus calls for a different mode of analysis -that offered by political sociology. This course maps the working of 'modern' institutions, premised on the existence of an individuated society, in a context marked by communitarian solidarities, and their mutual transformation thereby. It also familiarizes students with the working of the Indian state, paying attention to the contradictory dynamics of modern state power.

Course outcomes:

- Understand the working of major political institutions in India
- Understand the major debates in Indian politics along the axes of caste, gender, region and religion
- Understand the changing nature of the Indian state and the contradictory dynamics of modern state power

I. Political Parties and the Party System (6 lectures)

Trends in the Party System; From the Congress System to Multi-Party Coalitions

II. Determinants of Voting Behaviour (8 lectures)

Caste, Class, Gender and Religion

III. Regional Aspirations (8 lectures)

POL HC 4036 Global Politics

Course objective: This course introduces students to the key debates on the meaning and nature of globalization by addressing its political, economic, social, cultural and technological dimensions. In keeping with the most important debates within the globalization discourse, it imparts an understanding of the working of the world economy, its anchors and resistances offered by global social movements while analyzing the changing nature of relationship between the state and trans-national actors and networks. The course also offers insights into key contemporary global issues such as the proliferation of nuclear weapons, ecological issues, international terrorism, and human security before concluding with a debate on the phenomenon of global governance.

Course Outcomes:

- To enable students to understand how to approach a wide range of important global political and economic policy problems and participate in public policy debates on the crucial issues facing the world today.
- To have knowledge of the essential theoretical assumptions underlying globalisation's conceptual frameworks and their relationships to policy interventions.
- To demonstrate elementary knowledge of major issues and subject-matters surrounding globalisation that decides the international relations- political, economic and security relations- among the nations.
